The cover features a dense, repeating pattern of stylized acanthus leaves and scrolls in a light tan color against a dark background. This pattern forms a wide border around a central text area. The text area is divided into several horizontal sections by thin black lines. The top section contains the title in red Gothic script. Below it is a decorative flourish. The next section contains the publisher's name in red Gothic script. This is followed by another decorative flourish. The bottom section contains the composer's name in red Gothic script. The very bottom section contains the publisher's name and location in black Gothic script.
