

[words by Rupert Brooke]

The Spring is here

W. Thomas

Soprano

Alto

Bass

Virace

dim

And sud-den-ly the wind comes soft, And Spring is here a-

dim

And Sud-den-ly the wind comes soft And Spring is here a-

dim

And sud-den-ly the wind comes soft, And Spring is here a - gain, And the haw-thorn quickens with buds of green, & my heart with buds of

dim poco rall

gain ... And the hawthorn quickens with buds of green, & my heart with buds of

dim. poco rall

gain , And the hawthorn quickens with buds of green, & my heart with buds of

meno mosso pain. My heart all win-ter lay so numb, The earth so dead and pain. My heart all win-ter lay so numb, The earth so dead and pain my heart lay so numb, The earth so dead and

cres

frore, That I ne- ver thought the Spring would come, Or my heart wake any

cres

frore, That I ne- ver thought the Spring would come, Or my heart wake any

dim

vivace

more. But winter's broken, and earth has woken the small birds cry a - more ... ff

But winter's broken, & earth has woken, the small birds cry a - more But winter's broken, & earth has woken & the small birds cry a - gain, And the hawthorn hedge puts forth its buds, & my heart puts forth its pain

rall

gain.. And the hawthorn hedge puts forth its buds, & my heart puts forth its pain

rall.

gain.. And the hawthorn hedge puts forth its buds, & my heart puts forth its pain

June 21st 1918